Dr. Michael Ryan and Br. Paul Montero

New principal, new direction

By Julio Castano

The St. Stanislaus Board of Directors has appointed Dr. Michael Ryan as our new principal for the coming school year.

This appointment is especially significant since it is the first time in 37 years that a layman has been named to this key position, and the board by its actions believes that Dr. Ryan is capable and ready for the new challenge.

Asked why his new direction has been made, Br. Paul said, "I believe that it is in the best interest of the school to separate the position of principal and president."

Most of us as students do not realize the time and effort that these positions require. As principal one is responsible for the entire educational aspect of SSC, and as president one has responsibilities in areas such as finance, fund raising, additional changes or renovations to buildings, and all the rest.

With the separation of the two positions Dr. Ryan and Br. Paul will work together as a team to benefit the entire school.

Br. Paul said that "his only setback in this decision would be the absence of dealing daily with the student body." Because the school needs a full-time principal, he has willingly accepted this new direction.

Dr. Ryan said, "This new appointment is the highest honor that I have ever received in my professional educational career of some 19 years."

He stressed that as principal his primary goals will be "to build upon the many programs and activities which have been established and to do everything possible to assist in improving and expanding these."

Next year, as an alumnus, I hope to see these words become a realization for the benefit of future students.

We wish Dr. Ryan and Br. Paul God's blessing in making SSC a better educational institution in the future.

OLA principal will depart

By Jennifer Pickle

Last week OLA received some distressing news.

After six years as principal, Sister Jackie will be leaving OLA next year. She told the students she did not want to leave. She has enjoyed her years at OLA, but things change, and people have to move on. Sister Jackie belongs to the Sisters of Mercy Order, who have moved her to Mercy Academy in New Orleans.

Kim Weinstein, a junior, said that her senior year won't be the same without Sister Jackie. Becca Kinney, a senior, commented that even though she won't be here next year, she still wished Sister Jackie was going to remain.

Paula Gaudin, a teacher at OLA, said that all of the teachers are going to miss her.

A decision has not been made as to who will replace Sister Jackie as principal. Someone is in mind, but nothing has been decided yet.

No matter who will become principal, they will never be able to take the place of Sister Jackie. She has given so much to our school and will be greatly missed.

The Gulf War

By Nick Walker

Editor's Note: As this issue was readied for the press, President Bush declared a cease fire and victory for America and its Allies in the Persian Gulf War.

After repeated air sorties and operations into Kuwait and Iraq, the ground war began. On Feb. 24, Allied troops stormed through Iraqi defenses along a 300-mile front and pushed 70 miles into Iraq.

More than 30,000 prisoners of war have been impounded and U.S. officials are worried over the growing numbers of POW's.

Unfortunately, Kuwait City has been set ablaze and some major landmarks are being destroyed. Various hotels and Parliament buildings are among the hardest hit.

Because of low resistance, the Allied ground offensive is ahead of schedule and is proceeding very well, according to U.S. Army General Norman H. Schwarzkopf who is in charge of coalition forces.

There are warnings by President Bush to hinder the effects of euphoria by the American public. "We have seen what Saddam Hussein can do and there should be no joyous celebrations yet. He is a man of many tricks," the President has warned.

Debris from an explosion impacted Allied barracks and killed at least 12 soldiers and injured many more. The debris was a result of the collision of a U.S. Patriot missile and an Iraqi Scud missile.

As the success of the ground war grown, many wonder what Saddam is hiding. Many wonder about the Soviet Union and its proposed peace plan. Many wonder whether this is all part of some master plan by the USSR.

The Coalition Forces have gained air supremacy, but the fight for ground supremacy must and will be attained.

As oil slicks threaten Saudi desalination plants in the Persian Gulf, Allied troops grow closer and closer to ending the conflict in the Middle East. Families of loved ones in the Middle East live in hopes that the war will soon come to an end and that our troops will soon be home to stay.

New Direction

Dear Students,

As all of you know by now, the St. Stanislaus Board of Directors has named Dr. Michael Ryan as our principal for the coming school year. I shall remain here at St. Stanislaus in the position of president. I thought that I would use this opportunity to tell you a little about this change in administration and why it has happened.

First, it is "history in the making," since this will be the first time in its 137-year history that St. Stanislaus has a principal who is not a Brother of the Sacred Heart. Obviously, this presents quite a challenge to Dr. Ryan, but he is both capable and ready for the challenge.

Why have we decided to separate the two positions of president and principal? Among other reasons, there are many exciting plans in the making for St. Stanislaus for the years ahead: possible curriculum changes, additional changes or renovations to buildings, new programs for students and faculty, and so forth. All of these programs and plans will require much time, energy, and effort on the part of our administration and faculty.

For the past five years, I have served as both president and principal. I believe that separating the positions of president and principal will allow Dr. Ryan and I to work together as a team in the leadership of our school community to help good things happen in ways that would not be possible if only one person were trying to fulfill both positions.

As principal, Dr. Ryan will be responsible for the entire educational aspect of St. Stanislaus. In ordinary language, he will be in charge of running the school.

As president, I shall coordinate and ultimately be responsible for the overall functioning of our campus: finances, buildings and grounds, the residencey program, our summer camp, food services, and our development program which includes admissions, alumni, and fund-raising. Of course, many other persons will continue to supervise those various areas on a daily basis; for example, Brother Lee and the residency program; Brother Pierre and our food service program; and so forth.

I am very please that Dr. Ryan has accepted our Board's invitation to serve as our principal. He is dedicated to St. Stanislaus and to you, our students. I look forward to working closely with him. And I look forward to my close relationship with all of you. Please pray for me and for Dr. Ryan and for all our faculty and staff who give themselves daily for your good.

Brother Paul Montero

Senior shirts

Senior shirts have always been a tradition at St. Stanislaus. This year the seniors have not yet gotten their highly desired and well used prizes. There are many comments being made about the practice of senior shirts.

As a concerned senior and long-time student, I think that the wait has been long enough. Before you now it, the seniors are just going to be things of the past. We want to try to show ourselves as leaders of this school by telling everyone that we are proud to wear our St. Stanislaus shirts.

A Concerned Senior

TV announcements

I am writing to propose that we use the television for announcements in the mornings. The televisions would be of great use because the students would probably pay more attention to them. Groups on campus and sports teams would also benefit.

Scores and highlights could be reported by the players themselves. Dances, rallies, and other functions could be announced by members of campus groups. Students could even make their own commercials between announcements. Having televisions in every classroom has opened doors to many possibilities. Why not take advantage of them?

Scott Niolet,
Senior

Support our troops

I, as an American citizen, am concerned about our troops in the Persian Gulf. They are highly trained individuals who meet demanding requirements of a harsh environment. We must support them in every way we can.

I call these men and women of various nations a team because each and every one of them must do their part to win the war. I am proud that all the Allies represent us in the fight to free Kuwait.

A Patriot

A soldier

Should I go to war?
This is the duty I have swore,
But I am one, and there are several more.
My duty, I should not ignore.
I will do my very best,
Inspite of all the rest
Who constantly protest
Against my greater interest.
I fight for certain beliefs,
Not mine, but the Commander in Chief's.
In this conflict there is no relief,
Just many engagements which are never brief.
So the next time you are in a store,
Please don't ignore
The man who fought for
All the things you think are a bore.

Walking back to my hotel, I thought about my conversation in the pub and concluded that people are capable of overcoming any dilemma if it affects their way of life.

When I returned to my hotel room, I dug up the card that listed the steps in conserving water. For the remainder of my trip I made an effort to do my share in the attempt to save California from ending up like a dried prune.

Although California is in danger of losing its water supply, the real message, I believe, no matter how large the problem, everyone should come together as a team and do his or her share. Many problems of the world would cease to exist if this occurs.

SSC and OLA seniors look to the future

By Julio Castano and Jennifer Pickle

This year seniors across the nation will be making decisions which will seriously affect their future.

Here is what several had to say when asked about their future pans.

SSC Senior Nick Walker will be attending a service academy, either the Merchant Marine Academy or the U.S. Naval Academy. Nick believes that he is adequately prepared. He also plans to major in either Naval architecture or systems engineering.

When asked what he would miss most about SSC, he replied, "My friends and the faculty here."

Dennis Behan is enthusiastic about attending St. Mary's College in California. When asked how well prepared he is for college, he replied, "St. Stanislaus has prepared me well for the big job that awaits me."

Dennis plans to major in drama and communications. Upon leaving St. Stanislaus Dennis said he would "miss his friends and the faculty."

Jeff Gensberger plans to attend U.S.L. and will be majoring in the field of communications. Jeff feels that he is competently prepared for college and awaits class in the fall. When Jeff leaves St. Stanislaus, he said, "I will miss the closeness and friendship of the St. Stanislaus community."

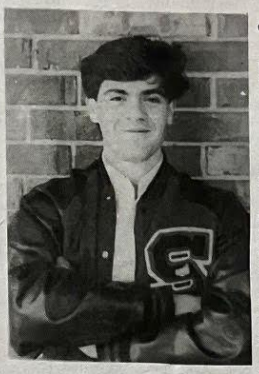
OLA Senior Rachel Fillingame will be attending Pearl River Community College.

"The River is close to home, at least for now," she said. Rachel feels that she is prepared but will not know for sure until she gets there. When asked what she will miss most about OLA, she replied, "My many friends."

Amy Powers is looking forward to attend South Alabama. Her intended major is pre-law/ political science.

Amy chose South Alabama because "it is a fun school." She feels that OLA has adequately prepared her for college. When asked what she will miss most about OLA, she said, "Friends."

Summer Black will be attending Loyola University in New Orleans. She is fascinated with the field of medicine and will major in biology. She chose Loyola because it is a very fine institution, and her family is now living in the city. Summer feels that OLA has well prepared her for college. When asked what she will miss most about OLA, she replied, "Its people."



JOE WILLIAMS

Joe Williams named merit finalist

By Sandy Parker

Senior Joe Williams has been honored by being named a National Merit Finalist.

Joe is one of 14,000 students in the country to receive this honor. He was named a finalist because of his outstanding scores on the PSAT and SAT standardized tests.

Joe has attended St. Stanislaus since the 7th grade. He is vice president of the National Honor Society, captain of the Varsity Quiz Bowl Team, president of Mu Alpha Theta, Rock-A-Chaw Man, representative of St. Stanislaus on the Dioceasan Youth Council, and is a member of the Math and Science Teams.

Joe plans to attend the University of New Orleans and major in electrical engineering and English.

Couch potato war

By Nick Walker

Has there ever been a war in American history which has been covered by the media in the manner in which the Persian Gulf War has been? The answer: a resounding "no."

The average American can now sit down and watch CNN and discover the day's events in the war. He or she can receive live pictures from Baghdad and see the destruction the American forces have inflicted first hand.

Another question: Is the intense coverage good or bad?

The media has the unparalleled power to sway public opinion with the mention of a few words. To sway public opinion is to sway the government in which we live. Is it good for the media to have such power?

With the new advances in technology, the media can "set-up" anywhere with a satellite-uplink and begin broadcasting. I believe the most important issue here is accuracy by the media.

When I was in Washington recently, I participated in a "crossfire" concerning this issue. During this debate, a colleague from Pennsylvania and I stumbled on a key issue that concerns all of us; not just American citizens, but people all over the world.

Many of us do not realize the effectiveness of the media and are probably not even conscious of it. I believe the problem lies in the way the facts are presented and not how much the viewer weighs the truth. It is virtually impossible for an international issue to be reported without bias, and even more impossible is the same bias concerning national occurrences.

The power of the media on a national and political level was clearly exhibited during the Reagan Administration when a Supreme Court nominee was alleged to have smoked marijuana prior to his nomination. The press concentrated on this issue, and plainly shot this man down.

I am not saying that this is bad. My point is to prove that the media has tremendous influence and power.

I believe that education is needed to stop public opinion

'Hello Dolly' nears play date

By Dennis Behan

Hold on to your seats. Hello Dolly is about to take off.

The Drama Club has focused much time and effort to make this year's production enjoyable and entertaining for its viewers.

Ably guided by Walter Damiens, the Drama Club has stepped out of its normal everyday routine and into the play.

"When I enter the room where practice is held I am Barnaby Tucker. In order for me to successfully portray the true character of Barnaby I must dig deep into my imagination and believe in my heart and mind that I am Barnaby Tucker.

Mr. Damiens has said that this year's cast is by far the most talented group he has ever worked with.

The play will be performed at 7 p.m. on April 9, 10, 11 and 12 at the Bay High Auditorium. Don't miss it!

Led by student director Julio Castano the Drama Club is rapidly moving toward the play date. "Everyone helps one another," stated Castano. We're like one big family."

Presidential Classroom

By Nick Walker and Kevin Bourg

Seniors Kevin Bourg and Nick Walker recently attended the 'Presidential Classroom for Young Americans' in Washington, D.C.

The week-long session took place Feb. 16 to Feb. 23, and students resided at the Omni Shoreham Hotel inside the city, the two students reported.

The classrooms were conducted as seminars ranging from foreign policy to handgun control. The seminars were presented by prominent figures in government: James K. Glassman, editor of Roll Call, Dr. Saif Abbas Abdulla, chairman of the Kwaiti Outreach Program, Senator William Cohen from Maine, The Honorable James Trafikant from Ohio, and Secretary of Defense Dick Cheyney, who was the highlight of the session.

The group of 401 students came from across the nation, and there were also American citizens from such countries as Bermuda, Puerto Rico, Japan and Honduras. They were divided into ten caucuses consisting of approximately 40 members each. Caucus meetings were held every day along with Crossfire every other day.

In the caucuses, students discussed the day's events, the plans for the next day, and gave various viewpoints on current issues.

Crossfires provided an opportunity for a varied group of about 30 students to share viewpoints and debate answers to controversial questions.

Each day was filled with many activities and allowed very little free time. From visiting almost all the famous monuments and institutions in Washington to meeting with congressmen and senators from the corresponding state, the week proved to be a never-ending schedule of events.

Students were also allowed to explore Capitol Hill to the fullest and listen in on Supreme Court hearings and Senate/ House committee meetings.

The culture of the city was exemplified by the frequent travel of the Metro, the city's subway system, and the visit to the Burn Brae Theater. Students watched with awe as in a moment's notice waiters became actors serving in the production "Driving Miss Daisy."

The week ended with a dance on Friday night filled with many hugs and tears as a result of departure set for the following morning. Exchanges of addresses and phone numbers,

You do matter

By Dennis Behan

Recently I visited California, the most populated state in the country. The majority of my trip was spent in San Francisco, where the city and the entire state of California are facing some troubled times as they are running out of water.

Before leaving for the Far West, I was aware of the water shortage, but it did not bother me until my arrival. I then began to notice the effects of the drought.

The restaurant where we first dined served water only if the customer requested it. A plastic card was placed in the bathroom of my hotel notifying the occupant of the severety of the drought and the water shortage. The card also contained some methods of conserving water.

Among these were to flush the toilet only once a day, turn off the water while brushing teeth, take one shower a day, and follow special procedures on rinsing and washing while in the shower. I then thought to myself, "This doesn't mean me!! How can one person make a difference?", so I threw the card away.

As I walked around the city and spoke with many San Franciscans, I began to realize that the drought has seriously affected daily living.

I was in an old Irish-style pub one afternoon, and I met a man who conducted guided farm tours throughout California. He informed me of the tough times the farmers of California have encountered. The farmers already this year have faced a very harsh freeze which devastated crops. On top of this, the water used later for irrigation was rationed.

Many people do not realize that California grows over 200 different types of fruits and vegetables, more than any other state in the country. Without an ample supply of water, the crops cannot grow. The man believes the people of California are strong enough to overcome the water shortage.

"Anyone who can withstand an earthquake like the one we suffered can surely live without an over-abundance of water," one observed. "We use too much water anyway," he said.

I asked if he felt that a desalination plant would be necessary to overcome the water problems. "No," he replied, "Conservation is the issue. Rain will come. Until then the people need to do their share of helping out," he vowed.

In his freshman year Chris ran the 100 and won district (first), third for South State and sixth in state. He also placed first in the 400 meter dash.

In Chris' junior year he ran in the 100 meter, 200 meter, 2 x 100, and 4 x 200. He placed first in state with the 100 meter in 10.7 seconds, and first place in South State's 200 meter in 21.4 seconds.

At the Clarion Match of Champions Chris ran the 100 meter, 200 meter, and placed third in the 100 meter and first in the 200 meter.

Chris holds the record in the 100 meter, 200 meter and a 4A state record in the 200 meter.

He had been awarded a scholarship at USM and Ole Miss and signed the scholarship in track with Ole Miss. This scholarship includes room, board, and meals. Tuition is the only item not covered in his scholarship. Chris was not eligible to run his senior year because there was an age cutoff date.

Chris said, "I am very impressed with the Ole Miss program. Coach Walker of Ole Miss really has got it together. It's exciting just thinking about going there and to be able to run for the school."

We wish him the best of luck and new records in track in the years ahead.

Rock tennis off to strong start

By Anthony Sperance

The Rocks' tennis team is off to a fast start with three wins and one loss in four matches which is good tennis in any league.

The team traveled to Diamondhead to play Hancock to begin its 1991 season. The Rocks won convincingly, dropping one game along the way.

The team then traveled to Hattiesburg High to play their only nemesis of last year. This year they were looking to take back the losses they suffered last year. Bo Labat and Phillip Pratt defeated the Hattiesburg team in Boys Doubles. The Rocks lost the Boys Singles in a superb match played by "Paco" Corral. At the end of the day, though, it was Hattiesburg who would be victorious with a 3-2 margin.

"The team this year is stronger than ever and should give a good account of itself all season long," said tennis Coach Myron Labat.

Chris Delgado rounds out the team playing "A" matches.

from being swayed. Even though an issue may be pure fact, its true meaning can be altered by the way in which it is presented.

The common, gullible, and sometimes naive viewer or reader must be taught to see through the bias and allowed to interpret the facts. The journalist must be taught to report the facts in a manner which can be satisfiable to all views.

I am whole-heartedly behind the idea for having the media not only as a source of facts, but as a system of checks-and-balances inside our government. The media clearly is beneficial to us all, but sometimes I do not believe in the vaunting of the power that it has.

I believe that if one weighs the good points of the media against the bad points of the media, the good points will vividly outweigh the bad ones. There is always room for improvement, though.

We should try to eliminate as many bad points as possible. Educate the reader to interpret the facts. Educate the journalists to present un-biased facts. But most of all, allow the reader and the reporter to understand each other's jobs.

When positioned in another individual's shoes, things may be seen in a different light. This may aid in the education of both the reader and the journalist.

Great memories will be shared by all, and promises were made by the prospective "leaders of tomorrow" to keep in touch.
